honor of Mr. W. E. Anderson, whose loss was a great one to the school, and whose memory the school wishes to keep green and fragrant; the second to Henry Nelson, a pupil of the fourth grade, who lost his life by accident on the railroad a year ago, and the third to Katherine Simmons, who was enrolled in the third grade and died during the scholastic year.

These children were greatly loved by their teachers and playmates, and they planted the trees as a token of that affection. The trees were furnished by the school board, Hon. J. B. Cook giving his personal care to the planting of the trees.

IN LOVING TRIBUTE TO A TINY GIRL.

After a brief illness, Louise Holcombe, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. White and granddaughter of Mrs. L. B. Boyesen, passed on to the higher life on last Sunday morning at nine o'clock, at Mrs. Boyesen's residence on East Chase street. Little Louise was just ten months old, but during that brief span of life she had endeared herself to all who saw her by her sweetness of temper and charming, lovely ways.

The funeral services were held on Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the residence, Rev. Mr. Sibley officiating in a very beautiful and impressive manner. At the end of the service he read a touching and inspirational poem which must have brought comfort to the hearts of the stricken ones.

One more little one has gone before to dwell with the Master, who loved them so tenderly; one more blossom is now growing in "the house of many mansions"; one more little angel in the courts of God, whose laughing blue eyes will be as stars to beckon on the waiting ones below!

Pretty little Louise Holcombe,
Dainty as an opal rare,
Not in earth's discordant music
Was this babe's sweet life to share.

She was like the lily flower
Blossomed only for a day,
Brightening all the space about her
Then silently to pass away.

Gone to grace the heavenly garden
Where eternal flowers grow,
Gone to beckon up and onward,
The eager, waiting ones below.

Said to Cure Piles, Liver Trouble And Constipation

Says a well-known, motherly nurse-matron of one of our largest hospitals: "Never permit yourself or any member of your family to be constipated twenty-four hours; for back of nearly all sickness, especially those most difficult to treat, such as appendicitis, typhoid, malaria, scarlet fever, diphtheria, smallpox, measles and many other diseases, is neglected or imperfectly treated constipation. Let every intelligent family get the following prescription filled:

"Obtain of any leading druggist, one ounce aromatic fluid cascara, one ounce compound essence cardiol, and two ounces aromatic syrup rhubarb. Mix and adults take from one-half to two teaspoonsful after each meal. Mild and honeylike, and children take readily five drops to a teaspoonful, according to age, after each meal. This may be used without any bad effects and with absolute certainty of cure. If unable to obtain these ingredients from your regular druggist, you can readily obtain them at The Crystal Pharmacy."

Miss Lula Thames.

The Master's Call, a paper—Mrs. Fritz Hoffman.

A quartette—"Hear Us in Thy Love, O Father," Misses Nell Richards, Martha Malone, Edith Lusk and Ethel Ayers.

Reading—"The Tenth Legion," Miss Richards.

Closing Devotions.

TRIOLETS.
Myrtilla's eyes are black as jet
And bright as any jewel.
No man who's seen them can forget
Myrtilla's eyes are black as jet;
And as Myrtilla's a coquette,
Their wounds are very cruel.
Myrtilla's eyes are black as jet
And bright as any jewel.

Myrtilla's little sidelong glance
The boldest man abashes.
It's started more than one romance,
Myrtilla's little sidelong glance.
It doesn't give a man much chance,
Shot from beneath her lashes.
Myrtilla's little sidelong glance
The boldest man abashes.

I looked into Myrtilla's eyes,
I acted most insanely.
At least it seemed just then unwise,
I looked into Myrtilla's eyes—
But there was love, without disguise.
I saw the lamp quite plainly.
I looked into Myrtilla's eyes,
I acted most insanely.

TIMELY TIPS.

To avoid chapped hands take a small salt bag and put about a cup of oatmeal into it, tie it tight and place in a small dish beside your soap dish and when the children have washed and dried their hands with the towel have them dust the backs thoroughly with puff.

If breakfast is a bore or lunch a matter of indifference cut one or both of them out. Wait for distinct and unmistakable hunger and then eat slowly. If you do this you need ask few questions as to the propriety and digestibility of what you eat, and it need not be predigested.

It is as important not to get too thin as too stout, as either condition makes even a young girl look several years older than her actual age. A girl who considers herself fully grown should ascertain what is the correct weight for her height and then try to attain and maintain that standard.

If you value your own and your family's digestion don't serve tea with fish. The tannic acid in the tea hardens the fiber and makes it indigestible. It should not be offered with any form of fish or shell fish. Iced tea and soft-shell crabs, for example, are a combination that should be avoided.

The forehead filled with lines is not always a sign of years. Often it is nothing but evidence of bad facial habits. Do you knit your eyebrows when you are thinking of perplexing matters or are down on your luck? If you do you will have a forehead seamed with lines and several deep furrows between the eyes.

Glossy hair generally indicates that it has been well and carefully kept—that is, shampooed every few weeks, thoroughly brushed with the usual fifty strokes every day and the scalp massaged regularly. Brillantine is not used so much to impart gloss to the hair as to keep short hairs from blowing about the face.

For rough spots on forehead rub them vigorously with a rough towel; this will remove them, but also will leave them sore and raw. Anoint them with vaseline, pure lard, or cocoa butter. Next morning wash the face with an oil soap and do not disturb the spots. Before going out touch them with cocoa butter and in a few days the spots will disappear entirely.

The finger nails, teeth and hair more than any other parts of the body indicate when the system is in an unhealthy condition. Hair shows the weakened state by falling; teeth by softening, causing cavities, and the nails by breaking, having ridges and not infrequently being covered with small white spots. To improve these troubles the body must be strengthened internally, though local applications sometimes help.

All children should wear long stockings, says Dr. Mary Schaeffer. For infants they may be of knitted wool, for older children woven as usual. The older children must have elastic suspenders to keep their stockings in place. So long as boots or shoes are not intended to protect the feet from stones and gravel, and from wet, they cannot be too soft and pliable; and when they are needed for real protection they must still be soft, though made of leather, with round toes and no heel.

The cushioned back of a Morris chair has been found valuable in the sickroom to place back of the invalid in bed.

The handles of knives should never be immersed in water, or, after a time, they would become discolored and loose.

A relish made of one can of pimientos mixed with finely chopped celery is well liked. It is covered with French dressing and served on lettuce leaves.

Save one or two turkey wings. They are the best brushes in the world to use around a stove and they are splendid for sweeping closet shelves. Weigh the wing tip with an iron until it dries.

When books become badly soiled on the edges, if not gilt edged, close the book tightly, then erase the mark with an ink eraser. This will cut off all rough edges, all soiled marks and leave the book very clean.

To remove an ink stain from a colored waist put the stained portion in sweet milk and let it stand until the milk sours. Hang the waist up and let the milk dry, brush it off and wash in the usual manner. This will remove ink when buttermilk has failed.

In selecting a pure linen tablecloth, if you are no judge of linen moisten the goods with the tongue and if a damp spot instantly appears on the opposite side you may rest assured the linen is good. If not the moisture would be long in penetrating the weave.

Make several small bags of cheesecloth to use as coffee bags, or the lower half of salt bags may be thoroughly washed and used. Place the ground coffee in bags every night before retiring, and place in coffee pot all ready to add hot water in the morning.

To clean knife handles or ivory of any kind make a paste of whiting and lemon juice; with a soft rag rub this very thoroughly on the handles; if necessary, let it remain on for some time, then rub it off carefully; rinse quickly in warm water and polish with a soft cloth.

The question is still an open one as to whether light or heavy irons should be used to give the best results as to both speed and quality of work. Some housekeepers prefer the heavy iron and by clever guidance avoid lifting it as much as possible. They claim they can accomplish more and better work with a heavy iron than with one of light weight.

Confectionery and fancy cakes are being used for supper novelties now instead of the favorite crackers, although these latter are not banished entirely from parties. There are eclairs, lady fingers, tartelettes, fruit and even fish and small game made of paper or papier mache, and looking for all the world like the real sweets. But inside these dainties are tucked paper caps after the style of the better known supper party confections.

Newbro's Herpicide

A "HAIR-SAVER" THAT GROWS IN POPULARITY

DANDRUFF IS A SIGN OF DANGER TO THE HAIR

Dandruff is now known to be a disease—and a highly contagious one—that will in time destroy the hair and cause baldness.

The first indication of hair destruction is the appearance of dandruff, although there is always considerable injury to the scalp before dandruff finally appears.

The value of Newbro's Herpicide as an eradicator of dandruff and as a saver and beautifier of the hair, is now recognized by well-posted people everywhere. It is the ORIGINAL remedy that "kills the dandruff germ."

Herpicide is not a wonderful "discovery," nor is it the result of a dream or revelation. It is simply a scientific germicide and prophylactic for the scalp, and it is the first and only successful one to be compounded in harmony with Prof. Unna's theory. Prof. Unna, the dermatologist, of Hamburg, Germany (ask your doctor about him), was the first to advance the belief that dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair are caused by the invisible growth of vegetable character in the sebaceous glands of the scalp.

Send 10 cents in stamps to THE HERPICIDE COMPANY, Dept. 4, Detroit Mich., for sample and booklet. Two sizes—50 cents and $1.00. At drug stores. When you call for Herpicide, do not accept a substitute.

After Number Eight the Royal Hungarian Orchestra will present to you an artist's picture in music. Your special attention is called to that number, Description! Title—Grossmutterchen (Grandma). It starts with a bass violin solo accompanied very softly by the strings, an echo by one of the first violins and response by another first violin. This is the introduction. Next Grandmother starts singing a full strain of enchanting melody, it gradually dies out until the child falls asleep and Grandmother falls asleep also. Finishes with a soft dreamy chord.

taken part in it. But it was under the magnificent reign of Louis XIV. that the ballet flourished and the king planned such costumes of splendor as he considered worthy of the Olympian gods, Neptune, Phoebus and Bacchus. Mme. de Montespan, notwithstanding her forty-eight years, regained the heart of the fickle monarch by her ballet dancing.

The Empress Eugenie, who has had so many years of heartache, finds her comfort in getting close to "Mother Earth." At her Riviera villa she leads a quiet life and in her garden often weeds the beds with her own hands, still so delicate and pretty though so old. No half-withered bud or blossom is left on a rose bush or a plant, and she knows how to wage war against slugs and snails. At Sir Thomas Lipton's estate in Colombo, where she was a recent guest, one wonders if she assisted in the gathering of the tea leaves. When it rains she plays patience, laying the cards before her on the table in a solitary game. To play patience and to poke

CONCERNING WOMEN.

Mrs. Harriett Chalmers Adams, who climbed Mount Mystic, 19,200 feet high, in the Andean peaks, recently spoke before the Geographical society in Washington. She said she had been much impressed by the influence of the Germans in South America. Merry Widow hats, made in Germany, she said, had been worn for years in the Andean highlands.

The Carnegie commission has given a silver medal and a pension of $75 a month to Miss Kilkelly of Pittsburgh who saved the life of a servant girl by throwing rugs over her and beating out the flames that enveloped her as she rushed from the room where she had been serving tea when her apron caught fire. Miss Kilkelly says that she did only what any one else would have done under the circumstances, but she accepts the action of the committee.

This is a feat that women who are good swimmers might try, as it won an award of merit for Miss Johnson in the Bath club of London under the auspices of the Royal Life Saving society. She carried, while fully clothed, a person for twenty yards.

"If women only realized how great an asset in life a retentive memory is," declared a successful business woman the other day, "they would encourage it to a great extent in their children." The simplest method of training the memory is to memorize a few lines each day.

The first tea room in Los Angeles was opened something less than a year ago by two young college women, Miss Mildred Morris of Columbia and Miss Harriet Morris of Smith. In the first six months they made more than 15,000 paying customers. They have had to enlarge their quarters and have added to their business in several ways.

It is customary to associate the ballet with lightness of character, but Louis XIII, the gloomy, not only loved the ballet, was known to have

A PRETTY WAIST DESIGN.

It is considered necessary this season that the separate waist—if used at all—should match the color of the suit. For wear with a plum-colored broadcloth tailor gown, this bodice in plum peau de cygne would be most appropriate. The bodice is laid in half-inch vertical tucks; the sleeves in horizontal ones and finished with narrow bands of soutache at the hand. Small irregularly shaped buttons covered with silk and placed so that they touch, trim the center pleat, which is finished by a tulle ruffle of the silk, edged with soutache. The collar is also trimmed with braid.
